On October 27, 2008, Grand Valley's Hauenstein Center for Presidential Studies and Michigan Radio presented this panel discussion examining the policies of the presidential candidates and how they will impact Michigan. Experts on the environment, energy, and the economy are joined by advocates for the Barack Obama and John McCain campaigns to help explain their views in these important areas.

Panelists included Joe Schwarz, former Republican congressman from Michigan's 7th district; Mark Brewer, chairman of the Michigan Democratic Party; Mark Coscarelli, vice president for environmental research at Public Sector Consultants; Paul Isely, associate professor of economics at Grand Valley State University; and Imad Mahawili, executive director of the Michigan Alternative and Renewable Energy Center. The Hauenstein Center's Gleaves Whitney (pictured) and Michigan Radio's Dustin Dwyer provided introductory remarks, and Michigan Radio's Jack Lessenberry moderated.
