Schematic Planning Work Underway for Downtown Center

Architectural plans for Grand Valley State's future Downtown Center in Grand Rapids should be completed within about six months, according to President Arend D. Lubbers.

A CONTRACTOR OF THE PARTY OF

Officials in Michigan's Department of Management and Budget have released the $225,000 previously approved by the state legislature's Joint Capital Outlay Subcommittee to pay for schematic planning by the Grand Rapids architectural firm of Robert L. Wold Associates, Inc.

"Once this project phase is completed," said Lubbers, "the plans will be submitted for the subcommittee's review. Then, if approved, construction could begin in 1986."

The center will include classrooms, lab space, and support services for graduate and technical education, as well as the Office for Economic Expansion, and new broadcast facilities for WGVC:

Academic programs in the Center will be coordinated with the two-year offerings available through Grand Rapids Junior College.

"The entire project reflects the results of a year-long analysis of priority educational needs for the downtown area carried out by college officials and education specialists in the Michigan Department of Management and Budget," Lubbers emphasized.

Governor Blanchard has endorsed the project for its importance to the ongoing economic development of west Michigan, and the Joint Capital Outlay Subcommittee approved the schematic planning money after its own careful review of the center's detailed program statement.

"The authorization for the architects to proceed," Lubbers said, "shows Lansing's awareness that Grand Valley State's Downtown Center is

State Appropriation Forecast

College officials are expressing some concern about Governor Blanchard's proposed 9.1 percent state appropriation increase for GVSC in 1985.

Last year, the college's appropriation increased 12.5 percent, for a total of $16,749,900 in state funds. The 9.1 percent proposed increase would provide a total of $18,274,200 for the 85-86 fiscal year.

While the proposed increase is higher than the average 8 percent proposed for most other state institutions, the difference is due largely to "new building/opening" funds earmarked for specific costs associated with the new Field House.

Ronald F. VanSteeland, vice president for administration, says, "It's important to realize that this is an increase in state appropriation only, not an increase in total budget. The state appropriation comprises 64 percent of GVSC's total funding, with the remaining 36 percent coming from tuition and other income."

Another consideration, VanSteeland pointed out, "Actually only three fourths of that state appropriation will be available to the college during its 1985-86 fiscal year. The state's fiscal year begins in October, which is when the appropriation would be awarded, while GVSC's

Board of Control Appoints Officers

At its Annual Meeting, held February 1, Grand Valley's Board of Control unanimously re-elected Maxine M. Swanson as Chairman of the Board. Swanson was appointed to the board by former Governor William G. Milliken in November, 1981, and was reappointed by Governor James J. Blanchard in April, 1983.

A resident of Alma, Swanson was first elected chairman last February. She is an administrative assistant at Gratiot Community Hospital, a licensed practical nurse, and a certified medical assistant.

William F. Pickard was appointed vice chairman of the board, replacing Robert L. Hooker whose term has expired. A Dearborn businessman, Pickard was first appointed by former Governor William G. Milliken in 1977.

Pickard is a native of Flint, and owns a million-dollar McDonald's hamburger franchise, one of the largest in the country. He has a Ph.D. in higher education administration and social psychology. He earned his B.S. degree from Western Michigan University and his needed and is in harmony with the state's higher education quals."

The Center, to be built on 4.5 acres the college owns on the west bank of the Grand River, will contain 90,000 square feet of usable space. The site--one of 17 downtown area locations suggested by Grand Rapids city officials -was chosen after planners were unable to find an existing building which could feasibly be redesigned and renovated to meet state requirements for fire safety and barrier-free access. Lubbers noted, "We also needed a site large enough to meet projected student need -- in an area where our students would not be apprehensive about attending evening classes.

"It became evident that the college ought to look to new construction, incorporating the up-to-date standards and facilities needed for technologically sophisticated education in today's continuously changing hightech economy."

Total state funding for the project is estimated at $18 million, although that figure is tentative, pending completion of the architect's plans and estimates.

GVSC has already raised $1.9 million in private contributions for the center and is planning a capital drive to raise additional funds toward its completion, Lubbers said. "Major donations will be needed for new equipment and facilities for our public television station, Channel 35, which will relocate to the Downtown Center. And we will need private giving to provide for many equipment and laboratory needs of the computer science and engineering curricula, as well as for our program in office systems and facilities management."

A firm goal for the planned capital drive is not yet set, but Lubbers says he expects the final figure--"somewhere between $3.5 and $5.5 million" --to be established in time for a spring campaign kickoff.

Grand Rapids Mayor Gerald Helmholdt has pointed out that "construction of Grand Valley State's satellite campus facility downtown will make a dynamic contribution to the city's center as a major regional, cultural, and educational complex. It will strengthen our position as a conference and convention city, it will strengthen Grand Rapids Junior College by expanding future educational potential for JC graduates; and it will help meet the community need for upper-level and graduate degree course work for people employed in local business and industry."

The Downtown Center is part of the city's long-range concept for developing public and private facilities on the Grand River's west bank. Also included are plans for a 200-room, $13 million hotel to be built by local developers as well as a projected new public museum building to replace the present inadequate facility at Jefferson and Washington. Planners also hope that apartments or condominiums, and corporate headquarters or other office facilities may ultimately join the Ford Museum as part of the west bank's attractions.

fiscal year begins three months earlier, in July.

VanSteeland also noted that the Governor's proposed 11.1 percent overall higher education appropriation increase includes $25 million designated as a new "research excellence fund," as recommended by the Governor's Commission on the Future of Higher Education.

Many state legislators are concerned because this allocation system could result in shortchanging some institutions whose missions are primarily oriented toward teaching rather than research.

"It's unlikely that any of those dollars will come to GVSC," VanSteeland said.

"Virtually all of these special dollars for research will be allocated to the University of Michigan, Michigan State University, Wayne State University, and Michigan Technological University."

The Governor's budget recommendations were presented to the legislature late last month. Actual 1985-86 appropriations will not be finalized until after six to eight months of negotiation and debate among members of the state legislature and executive branch.

Bruce Tweddale, budget and research analyst in the Office of Institutional Analysis, reports that the 1984 class of entering freshmen at GVSC had a mean composite score of 20.0 on the American College Test Scores (ACT), the highest GVSC score from 1975 to 1983. The national mean composite score for students who enrolled in college during 1983-84 was 18.7, and the state average was 18.8.

Winter semester enrollment at GVSC is up 8 percent over last winter's figures. The current student head count stands at 6,806, an increase of 503 over the Winter 1984 semester.

Seventy-five percent of the students are undergraduates seeking a degree. Numbers of undergraduate non-degree students and graduate students are nearly equal and comprise the remaining 25 percent of the student body.

Robert Fletcher, Dean of Academic Services, attributes the increase in part to more efficient registration procedures and the quality and variety of the college's academic programs offered this winter.

Admissions applications figures for next fall also look promising. Total applications are up 27.4 percent over last year at this time. Last fall's total enrollment was 7,250 students.

Fletcher says improved recruitment efforts along with high quality academic programs have attracted more students. GVSC has increased its commitment to recruiting students transferring from community colleges, personalized its recruitment process to a greater degree; and emphasized its financial aid program. Students eligible for merit scholarships next fall are up 19.6 percent compared with last year.

Stage 3 to Present a Festival of Absurdist Drama

State 3 will present a program of six short plays from the modern French theatre in a "Festival of Absurdist Drama." Performances will be held in the Kirkhof Studio Theatre on February 15, 16, 22, 23, and 24.

Some of the plays, which vary in length from ten to fifty minutes, have never been produced in the west Michigan area, while others have only rarely been seen by local audiences. The entire program lasts two hours, and includes farce, comedy, and serious drama.

Directed by Roger Ellis, the program includes Robert Pinget's "Whisperings," a whodunnit of appearance versus reality; Ionesco's farce "The Lesson," which portrays the breakdown of a university professor's rational mind under the influence of his murderous passions; Jean Genet's "The Maids;" and three short works by Samuel Beckett, "Play," concerning the impossibility of communication between a man and his two exwives; "Footfalls," dealing with a young woman's sense of identity and her feelings towards her dying mother; and "Come and Go," a vignette of three aging women chatting on a park bench.

The program will feature performances by two guest artists, Elizabeth Devette and Karen Davis. Community Actress Carol Fletcher will also be part of the cast. GVSC student actors include Roy Phillippi, Thad Bell, Gregg Bruza, Lisanne Klim, Anasie Marcowicz, Norah Place, Debi Schut, Therese Kent, and Vicki Strong.

All performances will be at 8 p.m., with the exception of a 2 p.m. matinee on February 24. Ticket prices are $4.50, with a reduced price of $2.50 for students and senior citizens. Reservations may be made by contacting the Stage 3 theatre office, ext. 3485.

Band Concert to Feature Guest Soloist

Preshmen Are Materialistic but Not Conservative, Study Finds

"For a majority of today's freshmen, the objective of a college education is to get a better job and make more money, according to a recent survey.

"The survey showed students reflecting what its principal author, Alexander W. Astin, called 'a national trend to materialism.'

"More students than ever in the 19 years of the annual survey-67.8 per cent-said a 'very important' reason for attending college is 'to be able to make more money. '

"Mr. Astin said the increasing materialism of students presented a challenge to educators, who, he said, ought to decide how colleges and universities should respond to students' changing values.

"When asked what objectives they considered to be important, 71.2 per cent of the freshmen said they hoped to be 'well off financially,' while fewer than 45 per cent said it was important to 'develop a philosophy of life.'

"The findings are reported in The American Freshman: National Norms for Fall 1984. The survey was conducted by the Cooperative Institutional Research Program of the University of California at Los Angeles and the American Council on Educa-

"The survey found that this year's freshmen are a politically diverse group. Most--57.4 per cent--called themselves 'middle of the road,' and more said they were 'liberal' or 'far left' politically than said they were 'conservative' or 'far right.'

"'There's no support at all for reports of a universal conservative trend among students,' Mr. Astin said. 'That's just good copy. It's manufacturing the news. If anything, they're more liberal than in the past few years.'"

Greek Week Activities Planned

The first Greek Week in Grand Valley history will be held February 9 through 16. The purpose of the event is to introduce non-Greeks to the Greek life at Grand Valley and promote unity among Greeks on campus.

Faculty, staff, and students are invited to attend a Greek Open House Reception to celebrate and meet with the Greek organizations. The reception will be held on Tuesday, February 12, in the Mainsail Lounge, Kirkhof Center, from 12 noon until 2 p.m. Refreshments will be served.

Individual Greek organizations have planned events throughout the week for the campus community. In addition, they will have displays on exhibit in the Kirkhof Center throughout the week.

Truck For Sale

The college is accepting bids on a 1977 Dodge four-wheel-drive pickup truck. The vehicle is a 360Cl automatic with 33,715 actual miles. The transmission is bad and the truck has some rust and dents.

Interested parties may inspect the vehicle at the Service Building from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on weekdays through February 14. Sealed bids are due at the Purchasing Office, 201 Lake Michigan Hall, by 2 p.m. on Friday, February 15.

That office reserves the right to reject any or all bids. Questions should be directed to the Purchasing Office, ext. 3382.

Physical Plant Attendance Awards

Twenty-one Physical Plant employees will be honored at a luncheon on Wednesday, February 13, in Kirkhof Center.
Six of the employees had perfect attendance in 1984, twelve had excellent attendance, with fewer than three incidents or 30 hours sick leave used, and three improved their attendance by 50% or more using fewer than 40 hours. Each employee will receive a Certificate of Appreciation from President

Lubbers and two tickets for the Irwin Fund Banquet.
