The service will be in effect Monday through Friday until June 11, 1968, except for vacation periods and holidays.

The bus will be identified by a large green-and-white GRAND VALLEY STATE COLLEGE sign in the side window.

ALUMNI NEWS -- GVSC alumni are at work in varied careers, including business, banking, government, social work, and teaching. The GVSC Alumni Association reports that three members have entered the U.S. Armed Forces; twelve are at graduate schools and three have entered theological schools. Among those who have written the Association, ten are teaching in the Grand Rapids school districts; four in the Muskegon school districts; and two in the Grand Haven school district. One GVSC alumnus will be teaching this year in each of the following school districts: Spring Lake, Grandville, Lowell, Grant, Saugatuck, Bauer, Okemos, Detroit, Fruitport, Hudsonville, White Pigeon, Sparta, Montague, No. Ottawa, Howard City, Allendale, Wyoming, Coopersville, Rockford; and Denver, Colorado; Sioux Center, Iowa; Fairfax County, Virginia; and Aleutian Islands, Alaska.

ARCHAEOLOGICAL DIG -- Twenty-one students learned the techniques of archaeological research this summer at a "dig" just north of Grand River Drive, Ada. The excavation was under the direction of GVSC professor of anthropology and sociology Richard E. Flanders, and sociology instructor John Vonk. Unearthed was the site of Rix Robinson's Trading Post, built in the early 1800's to serve trappers in the area for over thirty years. The site is privately owned and will soon disappear, as it is zoned industrially. However, artifacts from the dig are presently at Grand Valley and will be shared with the Grand Rapids Public Museum. Other digs during the summer included two Woodland hunting camps, one north of Grandville and the other east of Ada.
