THE
FIRST TIME
I MET
DANNY

LIV
BAKER

The boys and I are hanging a piñata
from the laundry room window & drinking tequila straight from the bottle.
By nine-thirty we are drunk
& by ten-thirty, we start to swing.

Danny hands me a baseball bat
& watches me tear the pinata to shreds, sending split-half tootsie rolls
flying across the lawn like confetti.
I am the piñata-hitting queen.

When I trip on the sidewalk,
grind two kneecaps like pink salt,
what Danny doesn't do is clean them
because Danny says blood is beautiful & kisses them like he's applying lipstick.

The next morning we fuck, drink coffee,
clean tootsie roll carcasses
off of the sidewalks & fuck again & when I hear from Danny next, he's living in a basement in Colorado.

He writes me and says
his day-job sucks & he's tired of renting skis to rich white women who fuck him & slip him 100s, he says
he wants to buy me the moon.

The next time I hear about Danny his friend says: you didn't know?—
Danny was shot in the heart
three weeks ago by two Cuban banana farmers—

When I was red wine drunk in my bedroom Danny was naked on a Guatemalan
rug heavy with his own blood & I don't know if this is what Danny meant by beautiful.
