When There's Nothing Left
Raymond L. Antel III

Upon growing older you will find your hair stuck in your comb drowning in your sink floating freely in the wind

Some of your parts will no longer work Use it or lose it

Your joints will be in need of 3in1 or WD-40
or a loving massage from someone else who knows what it is to face Mr. Time and bow

You are reduced to Sundays in a T-shirt with ketchup stains gurgling PBR's melting into the davenport and watching old black and white westerns

What else is there?
