IN MEMORIAM

This issue of Reading Horizons is dedicated to Homer L. J. Carter who was the founder and editor of the journal until his death on January 11, 1971.

Professor Carter was a man of strong convictions. He believed that service to others is man's greatest gift to the world. He believed that every person should set up worthwhile goals and should work earnestly and diligently to achieve these objectives. He believed that there is no greater satisfaction in life than a job well done. He was a man who lived his beliefs.

Homer L. J. Carter was a forceful writer and an excellent teacher who gave much of himself in his constant efforts to help others and to make a worthwhile contribution in the field of reading. He inspired many of his students to follow in his footsteps and had a stimulating influence upon all who had the good fortune to work closely with him. It will be impossible to participate in the field of reading without remembering the enthusiasm and spirited teaching of Homer L. J. Carter
