

What's the Smart Way to Search for Information?

Searching for information isn't always a straightforward process— to find the most useful information, you'll need to be flexible and look in a variety of different places using a variety of different search terms. Remember when you're searching that:

Your first search should never be your last— be PERSISTENT and continue searching until you have the information you need

How you search matters— different TERMS will yield different results

Not all searches are created equal— think about the SIZE AND SCOPE of your search

Don't be afraid to reach out to the EXPERTS for help— librarians are here to help you!

Information can come from a VARIETY of search engines— Google isn't always going to cut it!
